

Call For Submissions: Anarchy and Age

"Whispers Under Your Breath" will be a regular column in the almost existing radical newspaper "The Dirt". This paper is combative and anti-state with a special focus on the incarceration industry.

“Whispers under your breath” will be a space for ongoing conversations about why anarchy has not yet smashed the state, and how it should. In other words, a space for dialogue about discourse and strategy.

We'll be doing this by sending to print a wide variety of individual short opinion pieces (1-3 paragraphs, not strictly though) about a chosen subject, as well as, responses in the following issues of the newspaper. We'd like you to send us a message about what you think the subject for the next issue should be and maybe we will choose them from a hat or something but, to get people rolling the first subject is, "Anarchy and Age". We'd like to hear what you have to say about why it seems anarchy in the united states is so dominated by people in their 20's. Are we doomed to repeat the mistakes of those before us? Why do people get burnt out? Why do they feel unsupported? How can we fix these problems? How can we reciprocate repression more effectively? What does anarchy as a lifelong struggle and multi-generational tradition look like?

Write down your thoughts and share them!
